

Appendix 1 – Stakeholders

Over 50 key stakeholder groups participated in development of the Medicines and Poisons Act 2014. This including Government, medical, nursing and midwifery, pharmacy, dental, allied health, and consumer organisations.

For the development of this Consultation Regulatory Impact Statement a full review of stakeholders was conducted. To date, over 160 organisations have contributed towards proposed changes for new Regulations. The individual number of persons that have contributed is significantly higher than this figure. In many cases there may have been multiple representatives from an organisation. A number of persons have also contributed as individuals with any specific affiliation to an organisation.

The organisations identified as stakeholders and contacted for comment, or that have simply provided opinion during the consultation period, are listed below. Contributions could include written submissions, completed surveys, face-to-face interviews conducted, participation in forums, or through any other means.

The Department has not placed any restrictions on who may contribute or how these comments might be supplied. All information provided has been considered for inclusion.
